Movie Morning - "Bringing Up Baby"

Host ~ Geoff Lepper

Come, relax and enjoy the 1938 "screwball comedy", Bringing Up Baby, starring Cary Grant and Katherine Hepburn. What's a movie without popcorn, which Geoff will provide along with refreshments.

Geoff highly recommends this film and provides the following description:

Cary Grant is a museum dinosaur expert, who is under great stress one day because,

- (1) he is getting married to his very straitlaced colleague the next day,
- (2) he is about to receive, by post, the final bone required to complete a complex dinosaur skeleton and
- (3) he is about to play a "social" round of golf with a lawyer for a wealthy woman who might choose to donate a million dollars to the museum if Grant's character (David) puts on a good impression.

Unfortunately for David, he keeps running into Hepburn's character (Susan), who is completely free spirited and spontaneous and convinced that David is in love with her, and the more she tries to help David the more she messes everything up and it doesn't help that she tricks David into helping her to take a tame pet leopard to the Connecticut home of her aunt, who turns out to be the rich woman who might donate the money to the museum. It doesn't make matters better when she constantly does strange things to drive him crazy and then when people ask about his stressed mannerisms she has no hesitation to tell everybody that he's insane.

Overall, a movie that everybody should see at least once (if not many times).

Sunday, August 29th
